“ Victoria University of Wellington has access to a climate change research centre and resources dedicated to climate change studies, which is a crucial factor in studying in a science and policy programme. An exceptional aspect of the programme involves the hands-on experience of writing a research paper, providing valuable insights and the opportunity to work closely with talented university supervisors. ”

“

Being a Manaaki Scholarship recipient has been an incredibly rewarding experience. The scholarship not only provided crucial financial support but also connected me with a vibrant network of international scholars, fostering a strong sense of community and shared purpose.

What attracted me most to the Master of Commerce in Information Systems programme at Victoria University of Wellington was its effective blend of practical learning, academic rigour, and strong industry connections. The programme's close ties to industry through networking events, guest lectures, and collaborative projects have given me valuable insights and expanded my professional network, directly complementing my background in government digital transformation.
