

HELP US SAVE OUR LANGUAGES!

Our Project

We have 244 students and 24 languages spoken at our school. Many schools in our area have similar demographics.

Our problem is that students at our school, and in our wider community, don't have a real audience for their writing. Students who read and write in other languages have less options available. We hope our website can fix this problem by having a place where students can share writing in any language, and read writing in any language.

How can you help?

1. Translate stories that are written in other languages into English.
2. Translate stories that are English in other languages.
3. Recording yourself reading a story in English or another language.

Scan this QR code to fill out our google form to register as a volunteer translator. Answer the questions and we will be in touch with you with stories that are ready to be translated!

If you have any extra information that you are wondering about us, please contact us via our email.

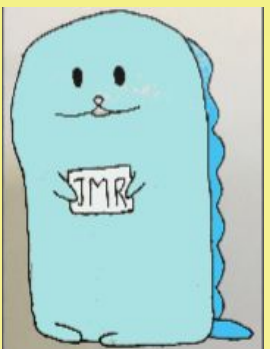

Go to our school website to find out more about our project for 2019, and to see our project from 2018.

Our project is part of 123 Tech. 123 Tech is a competition where you have to find a problem in the school or local community and use technology to fix it. We have help from an industry mentor.

Our project is our website of stories in many languages. After we receive stories from you, we will upload them onto our website and it will be soon revealed to the whole world. Soon everyone in the world can check out our stories.
