Victoria University of Wellington

Victoria University of Wellington celebrated its centenary seven years ago. It combines the benefits of a long and distinguished tradition of academic excellence with innovation and a strong sense of commitment to serving the needs of students and the community in the new millennium.

Located in the “dress circle” overlooking Wellington’s fine harbour, the main Kelburn campus commands stunning views and is within just a few minutes’ walk of the city centre. Victoria combines the advantages of almost ideal size for a university with a superb location in the country’s political and cultural capital and a major commercial centre. It has more than 18,500 students from more than 70 countries.

Its many distinguished graduates include a winner of the Nobel Prize in Chemistry for the year 2000, Professor Alan MacDiarmid, who now works at the University of Pennsylvania but retains strong links with Victoria and was awarded an Honorary Doctor of Science degree by the University in 1999. Another is Sir Kenneth Keith, a graduate and former dean of Victoria’s Law School, who in 2005 was elected by the UN Security Council and General Assembly to be a judge of the International Court of Justice.

Founded by an Act of Parliament to mark the diamond jubilee of Queen Victoria in 1897, the University began teaching and research in 1899 as a college affiliated to the University of New Zealand. Initially, lectures took place in rented accommodation in the city while a debate raged over where the new institution should be built. Towards the end of 1901 the College Council decided on the site in Kelburn, described not too inaccurately as “six vertical acres”, and in 1906 its distinctive neogothic red brick Hunter Building, now a widely recognised Wellington landmark, was completed.

From the beginning of the 1990s, with a roll of more than 10,000, several schools took up quarters in the central city to ease pressure on the Kelburn campus. The Te Aro campus, in the city’s artistic heart, is the home of the Schools of Architecture and Design. The Pipitea campus, close to Parliament and the courts, consists of the magnificently restored historic Government Buildings on Lambton Quay, and the neighbouring Rutherford House and Wellington Railway Station. This campus is home to the University’s schools specialising in the study of law, business, commerce and administration. In 2005, the University merged with the Wellington College of Education, which was founded in 1880. The Karori campus is home to the schools specialising in teacher education and the University’s foundation studies programme which it also offers in Auckland in association with Academic Colleges Group. The University teaches an International Master of Business Administration programme in Hong Kong in association with the Asia-Pacific Institute of Business.

Victoria enjoys many advantages of being New Zealand’s capital city university and has made the most of them by developing a highly interactive relationship with the city. Its students, staff and visiting researchers benefit from its proximity to many national research institutions and facilities such as the National Library and National Archives, the Museum of New Zealand Te Papa Tongarewa, and crown research institutes. It is privileged to draw on the services of leading experts from such institutions and from the business and official communities as guest lecturers and tutors, and many of them also return as students to Victoria, taking advantage of its offering of postgraduate qualifications.

Wellington is the cultural centre of New Zealand. It is home to the Royal New Zealand Ballet Company, the New Zealand School of Dance, the New Zealand Drama School, the New Zealand String Quartet (in residence at the University) and the New Zealand Symphony Orchestra whose principals and players are engaged as tutors and often perform at Victoria. The University contributes actively to the cultural life of the capital and has formed the New Zealand School of Music in partnership with Massey University.

A further advantage of the capital city location is the presence of many embassies and consulates, which add their own countries' cultural and social presence to the city, as well as assisting Victoria in providing a strong support network for its international students and a heightened consciousness of New Zealand's place in the wider world.

Victoria became an autonomous university in 1962, taking the name Victoria University of Wellington. More recently, to reflect New Zealand's bicultural (European and Māori) heritage this was extended to the current full name: Victoria University of Wellington Te Whare Wānanga o te Ūpoko o te Ika a Māui. The Māori name literally translates as "The university at the head of the fish of Māui". In Māori mythology the North Island of New Zealand was a great fish hauled from the depths of the Pacific Ocean by the god Māui from his boat, the South Island.

Students enrol with one of six faculties – Humanities & Social Sciences, Commerce & Administration, Architecture & Design, Science, Law and Education. Twenty-seven schools deliver the courses that make up the qualifications offered by these faculties. Victoria also hosts many important research centres and institutes with expertise in specialist areas. Toi huarewa is a pan-University faculty equivalent for Māori academics and non-Māori academics teaching courses or undertaking research with a significant Māori content. Central service units meet the needs of the faculties, schools and centres for administrative services.

An extensive range of services is also provided to students. Facilities include a large main library and several smaller specialist libraries in law, commerce, education and architecture and design. The University provides recreational facilities, university chaplaincies, creches, student halls of residence, numerous student support services, student union facilities, a Māori marae, music concert auditorium, drama theatre, and one of the country's most exciting public art galleries. Shops on the Kelburn campus include a computer store, bookshop, travel agency and bank as well as a bar and a range of cafes and restaurants.

Academic programmes are offered at Victoria throughout the year. There are three trimesters, the main ones being Trimester 1 running from March to June and Trimester 2 from July to October, with selected courses offered in the Summer Trimester from November to February.

The UTDC (Te Kōtuinga Mātauranga) provides professional development and advice to the University's schools and faculties as well as individual members of staff on course design, research-led learning and teaching, assessment, use of flexible and distance learning technologies, student evaluation and tutor training. The Centre provides a variety of workshops on current practice and innovation in higher education, informed through research undertaken by the UTDC academic staff. It also organises the Orientation to Academic Life programme for new academic staff each year, supplies policy advice to the University on teaching and learning, supports the University's online learning management system (Blackboard), and provides specialised support for Māori and Pacific academic staff. As well as undertaking formative programme and course evaluation, the UTDC also oversees the teaching and learning aspects of academic programme reviews, and administers the student evaluation of teaching and courses.

Victoria Link is the University's commercial arm through which contract research, consultancy and other services are offered to the community. The company pursues an active marketing strategy targeting potential clients in both the public and private sectors on behalf of schools and individual staff members within the University. Staff and schools wishing to engage in contract research and consultancy activities are expected to work through the company, which in return provides assistance in the negotiation and management of such contracts and the handling of intellectual property issues. The company manages technology transfer and the commercialisation of intellectual property created by staff. It also administers research funding from the Foundation for Research, Science and Technology, the Royal Society of New Zealand and the Health Research Council.

Victoria University of Wellington Foundation

Rooms 304, 312, 307 and 308, Hunter Building; Tel. 463 5109; Fax 463 5210

Email: vuw-foundation@vuw.ac.nz

The Foundation was established in 1990 as a registered charitable trust. Its purpose is to raise funds for projects that the University has identified as priorities, but which cannot be funded out of the University's budget. Donations are sought from corporate and public sector sponsors, from alumni and from community trusts and foundations. The Foundation has raised over $27 million to date.

Assisting the Foundation are many senior business and community leaders, largely Victoria alumni, who have a concern for, and a commitment to, ensuring the future development of the University through the provision of additional funding. Such funds lead to an enhancement of academic programmes and enable the provision of services such as additional student accommodation and student scholarships.

Victoria University Press

49 Rawhiti Terrace; Tel. 463 6580; Fax 463 6581; Email: victoria-press@vuw.ac.nz

The Press considers for publication University-related works. Books so published bear the Victoria University Press imprint, and a significant number have won prestigious awards.

Early discussion with the publisher is advisable for prospective authors, but no firm commitment for publication will be entered into until the Press is able to make an evaluation of a completed manuscript.
