COURSE AIMS AND OBJECTIVES

This course explores the meaning of democratic and economic decision-making at the state level in the context of an international society increasingly characterised by patterns of globalisation. The course begins with an exploration of the conceptual relationships among state, economy, globalisation, and environment. The course then examines how states actually manage their economic development through the use of case studies. These focus first on a number of environmental and natural resource issues – climate change, oil depletion, fisheries depletion, and biodiversity loss. The course then moves to examine the role of the state through attention to key aspects of globalisation – trade, financial liberalisation, the role of non-state actors, the uneven trans-border distribution of economic and environmental impacts.

By the end of the course, students should have a thorough understanding of the relative capacities of states to direct their economic development amid the challenges posed by globalisation and global environmental loss. Students should be able to assess how states derive their policy preferences and formation in general, and how New Zealand's international economic and environmental outlooks are shaped in particular.

KEY TEXT(S) AND RECOMMENDED READINGS

The recommended textbooks for the course are:

- David Held, Anthony McGrew, David Goldblatt and Jonathan Perraton, Global Transformations: Politics, Economics and Culture, (Polity Press, Cambridge, 1999).
- Ronnie D. Lipschutz and Ken Conca, The State and Social Power in Global Environmental Politics (Columbia University Press, New York, 1993).
- The POLS 436 Coursebook which contains a set of core readings.

Other useful readings may be distributed in class from time to time.

The readings required for seminar topics is set out below – these are available in the POLS 436 Coursebook or held in the Library.

However, you should not rely solely on the recommended texts or readings to write your research essay or prepare for the final exam. You are expected to show ability to independently research topics and to show familiarity with the relevant literature.

ASSESSMENT

The course will be assessed on a combination of in-term work (60%) and a final examination (40%).

In-term work:

- ▶ Seminar participation and presentations (10% of the final grade)
- ▶ Essay One – a research essay of about 5000 words (25% of the final grade) based on your seminar presentation. DUE: 27 May 2005.
- ▶ Essay Two – a research essay of about 5000 words (25% of the final grade) based on a topic of your choice but associated with the seminar topics. DUE: 03 October 2005.

Final exam

A final three-hour, closed-book examination (40% of the final grade). Students will be required to answer three essay-type questions (worth equal marks). The exam period runs from 14 October – 5 November 2005.

The University has a policy of reasonable accommodation of the needs of students with disabilities in examinations and other assessment procedures. Students are advised to speak to the course coordinator or disabilities liaison person in their school/department.

RELATIONSHIP BETWEEN ASSESSMENT AND COURSE OBJECTIVES

This course aims to develop your ability to think critically, to develop your research and analysis skills, and to achieve a high level of ability in written presentation. The seminar presentations provide opportunities for students to critically engage with a body of academic knowledge, to engage intellectually with fellow students and to present material in an accessible and informative manner. The research essays enable students to demonstrate ability in independent research, to gain in-depth knowledge of particular aspects of the course material, and to show skills in analysis and written presentation. The final examination allows students to display their understanding of the wider course content by applying course concepts and theories, organisation of material, and logical and coherent arguments in their answers.

COURSE WORKLOADS AND MANDATORY COURSE REQUIREMENTS

The workload of the paper is estimated at 12 hours per week, which includes class contact hours (2 hours per week), seminar preparation, and essay development. Attendance at lectures and tutorials is “regarded as necessary to the satisfactory completion of any course of study” (University Calendar). Your attendance also helps to develop and stimulate your areas of interest, it develops your confidence in expressing your ideas, and encourages an appreciation and respect for the views of others.

In order to pass POLS 436 / PUBL 408 students must:

- i) attend at least 75 percent of the weekly seminar presentations;
- ii) give at least two oral seminar presentations;
- iii) complete and submit all written work;
- iv) sit the final examination;
- v) obtain an overall course mark of at least 50 percent.

GENERAL UNIVERSITY POLICIES AND STATUTES

Students should familiarise themselves with the University's policies and statutes, particularly those regarding assessment and course of study requirements, and formal academic grievance procedures.

Student Conduct and Staff Conduct

The Statute on Student Conduct together with the Policy on Staff Conduct ensure that members of the University community are able to work, learn, study and participate in the academic and social aspects of the University's life in an atmosphere of safety and respect. The Statute on Student Conduct contains information on what conduct is prohibited and what steps can be taken if there is a complaint. For queries about complaint procedures under the Statute on Student Conduct, contact the Facilitator and Disputes Advisor. This Statute is available in the Faculty Student Administration Office or on the website at:

www.vuw.ac.nz/policy/StudentConduct.

The policy on Staff Conduct can be found on the VUW website at:

www.vuw.ac.nz/policy/StaffConduct.

Academic Grievances

If you have any academic problems with your course you should talk to the tutor or lecturer concerned or, if you are not satisfied with the result of that meeting, see the Head of School or the relevant Associate Dean of your faculty. Class representatives are available to assist you with this process. If, after trying the above channels, you are still unsatisfied, formal grievance procedures can be invoked. These are set out in the Academic Grievance Policy which is published on the VUW website:

www.vuw.ac.nz/policy/AcademicGrievances.

Academic integrity and Plagiarism

Academic integrity is about honesty – put simply it means no cheating. All members of the University community are responsible for upholding academic integrity, which means staff and students are expected to behave honestly, fairly and with respect for others at all times. Plagiarism is a form of cheating which undermines academic integrity. Plagiarism is prohibited at Victoria. The University defines plagiarism as follows:

Plagiarism is presenting someone else's work as if it were your own, whether you mean to or not.

‘Someone else’s work’ means anything that is not your own idea, even if it is presented in your own style. It includes material from books, journals or any other printed source, the work of other students or staff, information from the Internet, software programmes and other electronic material, designs and ideas. It also includes the organization or structuring of any such material.

Plagiarism is not worth the risk.

Any enrolled student found guilty of plagiarism will be subject to disciplinary procedures under the Statute on Student Conduct (www.vuw.ac.nz/policy/studentconduct) and may be penalized severely. Consequences of being found guilty of plagiarism can include:

- an oral or written warning
- suspension from class or university
- cancellation of your mark for an assessment or a fail grade for the course.

Find out more about plagiarism and how to avoid it, on the University’s website at:

www.vuw.ac.nz/home/studying/plagiarism.html.

Students with Disabilities

The University has a policy of reasonable accommodation of the needs of students with disabilities. The policy aims to give students with disabilities an equal opportunity with all other students to demonstrate their abilities. If you have a disability, impairment or chronic medical condition (temporary, permanent or recurring) that may impact on your ability to participate, learn and/or achieve in lectures and tutorials or in meeting the course requirements, please contact the Course Co-ordinator as early in the course as possible. Alternatively you may wish to approach a Student Adviser from Disability Support Services to confidentially discuss your individual needs and the options and support that are available. Disability Support Services are located on Level 1, Robert Stout Building:

Telephone: 463-6070

Email: disability@vuw.ac.nz

The name of your School’s Disability Liaison Person is in the relevant prospectus or can be obtained from the Administrative Assistant.

Student Support

Staff at Victoria want students' learning experiences at the University to be positive. If your academic progress is causing you concern, the following staff members will either help you directly or quickly put you in contact with someone who can.

	Staff member	Location
FHSS	Ann McDonald, Student Support Co-ordinator	2 Wai-te-ata Road

POLS 436: Seminar Schedule and Readings

The seminar schedule is set out below together with a number of suggested readings. These will form the basis of debate and discussion each week, and additional readings may be provided from time to time.

Please note that during the second trimester the course will run for six weeks. There will then be a break from classes to allow students to concentrate on the second research essay.
