Course aims and objectives

The state and the market represent two different approaches to organising human behaviour, and the relationship between them has always affected the conduct of public policy. This course explores the meaning of democratic and economic decision-making at the state level in the context of an international society increasingly characterised by patterns of globalisation. While globalisation may enhance a nation's economic prosperity, it may also threaten the autonomy of the nation-state by eroding the power of national governments to provide social, environmental, and democratic protection for their citizens.

By the end of the course, students should be able to: contrast the different roles played by governments in managing their economies; have a thorough understanding of the relative capacities of states to direct their economic development amid the challenges posed by globalisation; demonstrate a sound knowledge of how states pursue their public policy goals while responding to social, environmental, and democratic impacts of globalisation.

Key Text(s) and recommended readings

The recommended textbooks for the course are:

- David Held, Anthony McGrew, David Goldblatt and Jonathan Perraton, Global Transformations: Politics, Economics and Culture, (Polity Press, Cambridge, 1999)
- The PUBL 408 Coursebook which contains a set of core readings.

Other useful readings may be distributed in class from time to time.

The readings required for seminar topics is set out below – these are available in the PUBL 408 Coursebook.

However, you should not rely solely on the recommended texts or readings to write your research essay or prepare for the final exam. You are expected to show ability to independently research topics and to show familiarity with the relevant literature.

Assessment

The course will be assessed on a combination of: in-term work (60%); a final examination (40%).

In-term work (60%) consisting of:

- Seminar participation and presentations (10% of the final grade)
- Essay One (due 9 June) – an essay of about 5000 words selected from one of the essay questions – see separate list, (25% of the final grade)
- Essay Two (due 5 October) – a research essay of about 5000 words based on a topic of your choice but associated with the seminar topics, (25% of the final grade)

Final exam

A final three-hour, closed-book examination (40% of the final grade). Students will be required to answer three essay-type questions (worth equal marks). The exam period runs from 20 October – 11 November 2006.

The University has a policy of reasonable accommodation of the needs of students with disabilities in examinations and other assessment procedures. Students are advised to speak to the course coordinator or disabilities liaison person in their school/department.

Relationship between assessment and course objectives

This course aims to develop your ability to think critically, to develop your research and analysis skills, and to achieve a high level of ability in written presentation. The seminar presentations provide opportunities for students to critically engage with a body of academic knowledge, to engage intellectually with fellow students and to present material in an accessible and informative manner. The research essays enable students to demonstrate ability in independent research, to gain in-depth knowledge of particular aspects of the course material, and to show skills in analysis and written presentation. The final examination allows students to display their understanding of the wider course content by applying course concepts and theories, organisation of material, and logical and coherent arguments in their answers.

Course workloads and mandatory course requirements

The workload of the paper is estimated at 12 hours per week, which includes class contact hours (2 hours per week), seminar preparation, and essay development. Attendance at lectures and tutorials is “regarded as necessary to the satisfactory completion of any course of study” (University Calendar). Your attendance also helps to develop and stimulate your areas of interest, it develops your confidence in expressing your ideas, and encourages an appreciation and respect for the views of others.

In order to pass PUBL 408/POLS 436 students must:

- i) attend at least 75 percent of the weekly seminar presentations;
- ii) participate in leading seminar discussion of readings on two occasions
- iii) give one oral seminar presentation;
- iv) complete and submit all written work;
- v) sit the final examination;
- vi) obtain an overall course mark of at least 50 percent.

General University Policies and Statutes

Students should familiarise themselves with the University's policies and statutes, particularly those regarding assessment and course of study requirements, and formal academic grievance procedures.

Student Conduct and Staff Conduct

The Statute on Student Conduct together with the Policy on Staff Conduct ensure that members of the University community are able to work, learn, study and participate in the academic and social aspects of the University's life in an atmosphere of safety and respect. The Statute on Student Conduct contains information on what conduct is prohibited and what steps can be taken if there is a complaint. For queries about complaint procedures under the Statute on Student Conduct, contact the Facilitator and Disputes Advisor. This Statute is available in the Faculty Student Administration Office or on the website at: www.vuw.ac.nz/policy/StudentConduct.

The policy on Staff Conduct can be found on the VUW website at: www.vuw.ac.nz/policy/StaffConduct.

Academic Grievances

If you have any academic problems with your course you should talk to the tutor or lecturer concerned or, if you are not satisfied with the result of that meeting, see the Head of School or the Associate Dean (Students) of your Faculty. Class representatives are available to assist you with this process. If, after trying the above channels, you are still unsatisfied, formal grievance procedures can be invoked. These are set out in the Academic Grievances Policy which is published on the VUW website: www.vuw.ac.nz/policy/AcademicGrievances.

Academic Integrity and Plagiarism

Academic integrity is about honesty – put simply it means no cheating. All members of the University community are responsible for upholding academic integrity, which means staff and students are expected to behave honestly, fairly and with respect for others at all times.

Plagiarism is a form of cheating which undermines academic integrity. Plagiarism is prohibited at Victoria.

The University defines plagiarism as follows:

Plagiarism is presenting someone else's work as if it were your own, whether you mean to or not.

'Someone else's work' means anything that is not your own idea, even if it is presented in your own style. It includes material from books, journals or any other printed source, the work of other students or staff, information from the Internet, software programmes and other electronic material, designs and ideas. It also includes the organization or structuring of any such material.

Plagiarism is not worth the risk.

Any enrolled student found guilty of plagiarism will be subject to disciplinary procedures under the Statute on Student Conduct (www.vuw.ac.nz/policy/studentconduct) and may be penalized severely. Consequences of being found guilty of plagiarism can include:

- an oral or written warning
- suspension from class or university
- cancellation of your mark for an assessment or a fail grade for the course.

Find out more about plagiarism and how to avoid it, on the University's website at:
www.vuw.ac.nz/home/studying/plagiarism.html.

Students with Disabilities

The University has a policy of reasonable accommodation of the needs of students with disabilities. The policy aims to give students with disabilities an equal opportunity with all other students to demonstrate their abilities. If you have a disability, impairment or chronic medical condition (temporary, permanent or recurring) that may impact on your ability to participate, learn and/or achieve in lectures and tutorials or in meeting the course requirements, then please contact the Course Coordinator as early in the course as possible. Alternatively you may wish to approach a Student Adviser from Disability Support Services to confidentially discuss your individual needs and the options and support that are available. Disability Support Services are located on Level 1, Robert Stout Building, or phoning 463-6070, email: disability@vuw.ac.nz. The name of your School's Disability Liaison Person can be obtained from the Administrative Assistant or the School Prospectus.
