Course Objectives

By the end of the course, participants should have gained an enhanced understanding of the role of auditing in society. This will be achieved primarily through research and debate with others in the class of problematic issues that currently confront the auditing profession.

The course is not intended to train potential auditors but to develop students' ability to:

- critically appraise academic research and commentary of auditors from the Big-4 firms and Audit New Zealand on problematic issues that characterise and confront the theory and practice of modern external auditing; and
- work with others to communicate ideas clearly and succinctly, orally and in writing.

Course Content

The course content is presented in tabular form on page 6 of this Course Outline.

Course Material

A fee will be charged for Course Materials and Handouts.

Communication outside class times

Communication between students and facilitators will be either by the ACCY Honours chat group on MyVictoria or by email.

Assessment Requirements

The course assessment is comprised as follows:

Assessment item		% of total assessment
Group presentations	As primary researcher	25
	As support researcher	15
Individual presentation	To audit practitioners	5
Individual research report		45
Class participation		10
Total		100

Please note: The assessment schedule for group presentations and individual research reports is presented on page 7 of this course outline.

Group and individual presentations

All students are required to give three presentations – one relating to their primary area of research interest, another in their secondary research area and a final (individual) presentation to audit practitioners on their primary research findings.

Key learning objectives of the group research and presentations are the development of presentational and leadership skills, and the practice of working effectively with other colleagues (who may have a different working style, different attitudes and different strengths).

No particular style for the primary and secondary research presentations is “better” than another. The most important objective of the presentations is enhancing the knowledge and understanding of class members about the particular topic. Each research partnership should select the presentational style with which they feel most comfortable but be guided by the question: “How best can we enhance the group’s knowledge about, and understanding of, this issue?” Similarly for the individual presentations to the audit practitioners the question should be: “How can I succinctly convey my research findings and obtain good feedback in a short timeframe?”.

Research Topics

At the first class session on 13 July 2007 partners or directors from the Big 4 audit firms and

Audit New Zealand will be present to discuss the issues they are confronting in their day-to-day audit activities. This session will provide an opportunity for students to identify key components of these issues and to tease out ideas relating to the issues as a whole and the components thereof. It will also provide students with an opportunity to identify issues/topics in which they are interested in researching.

During the last hour of the 13 July class session following the departure of the five representatives from the Big 4 firms and Audit NZ, students will be given a list of possible research topics. Using this list and issues identified by the audit practitioners, students will be required to select their primary area/topic of research interest. Tim and Brenda will allocate another student as secondary researcher for each topic before the end of the class session.

Students will be research leader for, and write their research report on, the issue/topic confirmed as their area of primary research interest. They will also work in partnership as a secondary researcher with another student on his/her primary research topic.

Class readings

Once students' primary area of research interest has been confirmed, the primary researcher needs to identify two key articles on their research topic. This is to be emailed or delivered to Brenda Porter by 12.00 noon on Thursday 19 July 2007. Once two articles per student have been received, they will be assembled in a class book of readings. All students are expected to read the two articles relating to a research topic prior to the topic's presentation in class.

Up to 10% of the final course grade will be awarded for active participation in the class sessions during the research presentations; active participation will be taken to indicate students' preparedness for the presentation and to participate in the ensuing discussion/debate.

Presentations

- a) Students will present a précis (individually) of their primary research topic to the class on 27 July 2007. The purpose of this précis presentation is for students to outline and debate with other members of the class the intended scope of, and approach to, their primary topic of research interest. The presentation should make clear whether empirical research is to be involved (which may require ethics approval) and the likely content and subject headings of their final research report.
- b) Each research pair (under the leadership of the primary researcher) will give a presentation and facilitate discussion on the issue they have researched together. The purpose of these presentations is to enhance the knowledge and understanding about the topic of members of the class and to provide feedback to the researchers which may be useful for the preparation of the final research report.
- c) During the week beginning 8 October 2007, representatives of the Big 4 firms and Audit NZ will be present for the last class session. The purpose of this session is for students (individually) to present succinctly the findings of their research to, and to debate and consider feedback from, the five audit practitioners.

This final session should assist students in finalise their research reports. Up to 5% of the total course assessment will be awarded for this presentation.

Research time

In order to facilitate students researching their primary topics and preparing their presentations, no class sessions will be held in weeks 4, 5 or 6. However both Tim and Brenda will be available for consultation as required in guiding students in their researching.

Research Report

Each research report should not exceed 3000 words (plus an abstract and any appendices).

Reports are due to be handed into the School Office by 12.00 noon on 26 October 2007. In fairness to all students who submit their work on time, a one-mark penalty per day will be applied to all reports that are submitted after the due date.

Reports will be returned to students by 5.00pm on 9 November 2007 (they will be available from the School Office).

The assessment schedule for the research report is presented on page 7 of this Course Outline.

Passing the Course

In order to pass this course, students are required to obtain at least fifty percent of the overall course marks available.

Plagiarism

Victoria University defines plagiarism as the copying of ideas, organization, wording or anything else from another source without appropriate reference or acknowledgement so that it appears to be one's own work. This includes published and unpublished work, the Internet and the work of other students and staff. Plagiarism is an example of misconduct in the Statute of Student Conduct. Students who have plagiarized are subject to a range of penalties under the Statute. See the website: www.vuw.ac.nz/policy/StudentConduct

Notice of Turnitin Use

Student work provided for assessment in this course may be checked for academic integrity by the electronic search engine <<http://www.turnitin.com>>. Turnitin is an on-line plagiarism prevention tool which identifies material that may have been copied from other sources including the Internet, books, journals, periodicals or the work of other students. Turnitin is used to assist academic staff in detecting misreferencing, misquotation, and the inclusion of unattributed material, which may be forms of cheating or plagiarism. At the discretion of the Head of School, handwritten work may be copy typed by the School and subject to checking by Turnitin. You are strongly advised to check with your tutor or the course coordinator if you are uncertain about how to use and cite material from other sources. Turnitin will retain a copy of submitted materials on behalf of the University for detection of future plagiarism, but access to the full text of submissions will not be made available to any other party.

Grading Standards

Excellent

A (80 – 85%) to A+ (above 85%): The quality is of a very high standard, i.e. it is of a standard that makes it exceptional at Honours level.

Very Good

B+ (70 – 74%) to A- (75 – 79%): The quality is of a high standard. Students have reached a level which clearly exceeds “competency”.

Good

B- (60 – 64%) to B (65 – 69%): The quality is satisfactory without being exceptional in any way. The work demonstrates the student is competent.

Satisfactory

C (50 – 54%) to C+ (55 – 59%): The quality is at a minimally acceptable level. There may be deficiencies but these are not serious enough to “fail” the student.

Unsatisfactory

E (0 – 39%) to D (40 – 49%): The required quality standard has not been met or the work is seriously deficient.
