Course Objectives

A broad qualitative survey of the main futures tools used in long-range strategy assessment and formulation of strategic policy options in both public and private sector contexts. Tools illustrated and discussed will include environmental scanning and assessment, scenario analysis, simulation, experimentation and gaming.

PADM candidates are expected to achieve these learning outcomes at a level appropriate for senior managers in the NZ public sector (e.g. a strategic rather than operational focus; oriented towards whole-of-government rather than a single work unit or organisation; demonstrating synthesis, contextuality and multidisciplinary in thinking), and will be assessed on that basis.

Course Content

The course follows, in broad outline, the chapter headings in the course textbook (Geoff Coyle's Practical Strategy: Structured Tools and Techniques, Financial Times Prentice Hall 2004). Working in syndicates, course members will be required to use a variety of the strategy analysis tools in the Coyle textbook to explore and develop a case study on a strategic question of their choosing.

Other strategy analysis tools and techniques will also be explored by way of introduction during the course.

Learning Commitment

The learning objectives set for each course are demanding and, to achieve them, candidates must make a significant commitment in time and effort to reading, studying, thinking, and completion of assessment items outside of contact time. Courses vary in design but all require preparation and learning before the first module. Regular learning is necessary between modules (students who leave everything to the last moment rarely achieve at a high level). Expressed in input terms, the time commitment required usually translates to 65-95 hours (excluding class contact time) per course.

Readings

The course textbook is Geoff Coyle's Practical Strategy: Structured Tools and Techniques. This text is published by Financial Times Prentice Hall (2004) and is available for purchase through VicBooks (email vuwtexts@vicbooks.co.nz or go online at www.vicbooks.co.nz).

Other texts which provide useful additional reading are:

- Peter Schwartz (1991), The Art of the Long View, Doubleday, New York (an indispensable guide to anyone interested in scenario analysis and long range planning).

- Suzanne Turner (2002), Tools for Success: A Manager's Guide, McGraw Hill, London (a useful compilation and beginner's guide to ninety or more of the most commonly used strategic analysis tools).

Course members will also find it useful to download the Strategy Survival Guide available online from the UK Prime Minister's Strategy Unit. The 200 plus pages in this guide provide useful practical advice on a range of issues that strategy managers and analysts are concerned with. Although the guide is intended primarily for people working in a public sector context, there is much in it that will be very helpful to private sector analysts and managers as well. Go to www.strategy.gov.uk.

An additional text that course members may find helpful is the RAND book 'Shaping the Next One Hundred Years: New Methods for Quantitative, Long-Term Policy Analysis' by Robert Lempert et al. This can be downloaded from the RAND website at www.rand.org.

A range of other readings will be made available to course members as additional background and for class discussion. These readings are marked 'key' (liable to be discussed in class, with course members invited to lead discussion) or 'supplementary' (no expectation that these will be discussed in class, unless course members wish).

A listing for each of the first two modules follows:

Assessment Requirements

- One essay of 2,000 words (30%) providing a critical analysis of any aspect of strategic analysis in New Zealand (or any other country with which you have first hand experience). You must ground your analysis on your reflections on one or more of the course readings. The due date and time for the finished essay is 5.00pm, Wednesday 13 February 2008. This will give the course coordinator one week to review your essays and provide feedback at Module One.
- A case study (70%) based on Geoff Coyle's text on Practical Strategy¹. Working in class syndicates, the purpose of the case study is to allow you to demonstrate your ability to understand and apply the Coyle strategic analysis methodology to a current strategic issue in either the New Zealand public or private sectors. There are four separate stages involved in the case study:
 - (a) Forming up the syndicates and identifying strategic questions for case study. This will be done at Module One on Wednesday 20 February 2008.
 - (b) Refining the strategic questions and providing a preliminary report back on progress by each syndicate. The preliminary report and class discussion will take place at Module Two on Wednesday 16 April 2008.
 - (c) A final oral presentation (up to 40 minutes, but with time to be confirmed once the number of presentations have been established) of the completed case study to the class when it meets for Module Three on Wednesday 4 June 2008.
 - (d) A written report on the case study by each class member. The written report will comprise both a critique of the Coyle methodology, and description and comment on the case study. Final reports from individual class members are due at 5.00pm, Wednesday 18 June 2008.

Penalties

The ability to plan for and meet deadlines is a core competency of both advanced study and public management. Failure to meet deadlines disrupts course planning and is unfair on students who do submit their work on time. It is expected therefore that you will complete and hand in assignments by the due date. Marks may be deducted where assignments are submitted after the due date. For out of town students, two calendar days' grace is given to allow for time in the post.

If ill-health, family bereavement or other personal emergencies prevent you from meeting the deadline for submitting a piece of written work or from attending class to make a presentation, you can apply for and may be granted an extension to the due date. Note that this applies only to extreme unforeseen circumstances and is not necessarily awarded. You should let your Course Coordinator know as soon as possible in advance of the deadline if you are seeking an extension.

Mandatory Course Requirements

To fulfil the mandatory course requirements for this course, you are required to:

1. Submit all assignments by the due date;
2. Attend all contact sessions of the course.

Communication of Additional Information

Any additional communication during the course will be conveyed to course members by email.

Withdrawal Dates

Students giving notice of withdrawal from this course after Monday 3 March 2008 will NOT receive a refund of fees.

Students giving notice of withdrawal from this course after Friday 30 May 2008 are regarded as having failed the course, unless the Associate Dean subsequently gives approval to withdraw.

Student work provided for assessment in this course may be checked for academic integrity by the electronic search engine www.turnitin.com. Turnitin is an on-line plagiarism prevention tool which identifies material that may have been copied from other sources, including the Internet, books, journals, periodicals or the work of other students. Turnitin is used to assist academic staff in detecting misreferencing, misquotation, and the inclusion of unattributed material, which may be forms of cheating or plagiarism. At the discretion of the School, handwritten work may be copy typed by the School and subject to checking by Turnitin. You are strongly advised to check with your tutor or the course coordinator if you are uncertain about how to use and cite material from other sources. Turnitin will retain a copy of submitted materials on behalf of the University for detection of future plagiarism, but access to the full text of submissions will not be made available to any other party.

Academic Integrity and Plagiarism

Academic integrity is about honesty – put simply it means no cheating. All members of the University community are responsible for upholding academic integrity, which means staff and students are expected to behave honestly, fairly and with respect for others at all times.

Plagiarism is a form of cheating which undermines academic integrity. The University defines plagiarism as follows:

The presentation of the work of another person or other persons as if it were one's own, whether intended or not. This includes published or unpublished work, material on the Internet and the work of other students or staff.

It is still plagiarism even if you re-structure the material or present it in your own style or words.

Note: It is however, perfectly acceptable to include the work of others as long as that is acknowledged by appropriate referencing.

Plagiarism is prohibited at Victoria and is not worth the risk. Any enrolled student found guilty of plagiarism will be subject to disciplinary procedures under the Statute on Student Conduct and may be penalized severely. Consequences of being found guilty of plagiarism can include:

- an oral or written warning
- cancellation of your mark for an assessment or a fail grade for the course
- suspension from the course or the University.

Find out more about plagiarism, and how to avoid it, on the University's website: www.victoria.ac.nz/home/studying/plagiarism.html
