Your fees will be refunded if you withdraw from this course on or before 11 March 2011

The standard last date for withdrawal from this course on or before 14 May 2011. After this date, students forced to withdraw by circumstances beyond their control must apply for permission on an 'Application for Associate Dean's Permission to withdraw Late' including supporting documentation.

This application form is available from either of the Faculty's Student Customer Service Desks.

Course Content

The course covers a range of introductory material relating to the study of public policy. In particular, it addresses the following themes and topics:

- The nature of public policy;
- The contribution of various disciplinary frameworks to policy analysis;
- The policy process;
- The scientific and policy issues surrounding climate change;
- The policy issues surrounding ethnicity, cultural diversity and the Treaty of Waitangi; and
- Some key social policy issues.

Course Learning Objectives

public, adj., Of or pertaining to the people as a whole; that belongs to, affects, or concerns the community or nation; common, national, popular.

policy, n., A course of action adopted and pursued by a government, party, ruler, statesman, etc.; any course of action adopted as advantageous or expedient.

Oxford English Dictionary

Public policy encompasses everything from building roads in Wellington to providing education and health care services, regulating business activity and influencing world trade talks and climate change negotiations. Although the main subject is the decisions and actions taken by governments (at all levels), many other actors – including international bodies like the UN and the World Bank, businesses, trade unions, community groups, church leaders, website hosts, journalists, celebrity activists, suicide bombers, computer hackers, etc. – often play key roles in setting policy agendas, formulating and marketing proposals, implementing decisions and stirring public support and/or indignation for the outcomes. Three big questions motivate much work in the public policy field:

1. How and why do governments choose specific policies at specific times and under specific circumstances?
2. What makes particular policies good or bad?
3. How can policy-making processes and outcomes be improved?

This course will explore questions of this nature, both from the perspective of various theoretical approaches that offer more or less tidy explanations of policymaking behaviour, and through specific case studies of real New Zealand policymaking. Throughout the course, students will be asked to consider whether and how the real-world cases are, or are not, consistent with the theoretical approaches.

| Course Objectives: By the end of this course, students should be able to: | | Major Attributes |
|--|--|-------------------------|
| 1 | Describe the defining features of public policy, good policy analysis, and robust policy advice. | MA 1 |
| 2 | Analyse the influence of qualitative and normative political ideas and philosophies, and of constitutional and political institutions, on public policy. | MA 2, MA 9 |
| 3 | Explain the contributions, and limits, of quantitative and qualitative methods in policy analysis. | MA 3 |
| 4 | Describe the key ideas, legacies and contextual factors influencing public policy trends, both globally and locally. | MA 7 |
| 5 | Explain the main components of the policy-making cycle, including agenda setting, problem identification, policy formulation, decision making, implementation, evaluation and termination. | MA 4, MA 8 |
| 6 | Describe the nature of intervention logic, and the distinction between ‘rational’ and ‘incremental’ models of policy making. | MA 3, MA 6, MA 11 |
| 7 | Identify the practical limits to public policy, and the nature and respective roles of the state and civil society in the development, implementation and evaluation of public policy. | MA 4 |
| 8 | Appraise different disciplinary contributions (especially economics, politics and philosophy) to the development, implementation and evaluation of public policy. | MA 5 |
| 9 | Explain the significance of ethics and accountability in the study and practice of public policy. | MA 12 |
| 10 | Interpret the significance of the Treaty of Waitangi (Te Tiriti o Waitangi) in the study and practice of public policy in New Zealand. | MA 13 |

| Major Attributes: PUBL majors will be able to: | |
|---|---|
| MA1 | Judge the defining features of good policy analysis and advice and appraise how they are best produced |
| MA2 | Demonstrate an understanding of the influence of political ideas and philosophies, and of constitutional and political institutions on public policy |
| MA3 | Demonstrate an understanding of the contribution of quantitative and qualitative methods in policy analysis |
| MA4 | Identify the nature and respective roles of state and civil society in the development, implementation and evaluation of public policy, and demonstrate an understanding of the distinction between government and governance |
| MA5 | Appraise different disciplinary contributions to the development, implementation and evaluation of public policy |
| MA6 | Judge the relevance and importance of evidence in policymaking |
| MA7 | Apply the comparative method to policy analysis, and identify insights that might be drawn from other policy jurisdictions |
| MA8 | Judge and articulate the relevant criteria that might be used in assessing the advantages and disadvantages of particular policy options |
| MA9 | Analyse complex policy issues from multiple perspectives and identify opportunities for innovation |
| MA10 | Express ideas succinctly and persuasively both in written form and orally |
| MA11 | Construct and articulate rationales for public policy intervention |
| MA12 | Demonstrate an understanding of the significance of ethics and accountability in the study and practice of public policy |
| MA13 | Interpret the significance of the Treaty of Waitangi (Te Tiriti o Waitangi) in the study and practice of public policy in New Zealand |

Course Delivery

This course will be delivered through two one-hour lectures per week, plus one one-hour tutorial per week. There will only be brief opportunities for discussion during lectures. The lecture outline gives a good indication of the topics to be covered, but that may vary slightly to accommodate a guest speaker and/or to enable certain topical issues to be addressed. Tutorials provide an opportunity for interactive discussions and debate. These will focus, as indicated in the tutorial outline, on specific questions and will involve students reading and commenting on one or two specified articles/papers.

Expected Workload

It is expected that students taking PUBL 201 will attend the majority of the lectures, prepare for and attend at least 8 of the 11 tutorials, complete the assessment requirements and read an adequate amount of material relevant to the course. Overall, students are expected to undertake an average of between two and three hours of self-directed study per week for each contact hour.

Lecture Outline

1. What is public policy? (Chs. 1 & 2, Shaw and Eichbaum) (2 lectures): 1 & 3 March

 - Cash versus in-kind assistance
 - Targeting v universality
 - Inequality, poverty, and what to do about it

5. Conclusions (1 lecture): 2 June

Tutorial Topics

Tutorial 1: 7 – 11 March: What is public policy? Why study public policy? Can policies make a difference for good or ill?

Case study: the student loan scheme and student allowances in New Zealand. Critically assess the policies of the main political parties at the 2005 and 2008 general elections, including the costs and benefits of the zero interest rate on student loans and Labour's 2008 proposal for a universal student allowance. What changes, if any, should be made to the current system of student finance (i.e. loans and allowances) in the interests of maximizing efficiency, fairness and fiscal sustainability?

Readings: Shaw and Eichbaum, Chs. 1 & 14.

Readings on the student loan policies of Labour and National at the 2005 and 2008 general elections in NZ. See Course Readings and the relevant party websites.

Tutorial 2: 14 – 18 March: Human behaviour and public policy: What behavioural assumptions should we make for policy purposes? What insights do social psychology and behavioural economics provide to those seeking to design and implement public policy? Given such insights, what changes to current policy settings might be sensible?

Alana Cornforth, "Behaviour Change: Insights for Environmental Policy Making from Social Psychology and Behavioural Economics", Policy Quarterly, 5, 4, 2009, pp. 21 – 28.

Ministry of Economic Development, "Behavioural analysis for policy: New lessons from economics, philosophy, psychology, cognitive science, and sociology", Wellington, October 2006.

Tutorial 3: 21 – 25 March: Markets and morals: Are there some goods that money can't buy or shouldn't? If so, what are these goods, and what's wrong with buying and selling them? For instance, should people be allowed to sell their blood and body parts? Should polluters be allowed to pollute if they pay enough? Should there be a minimum wage or should people be allowed to sell their labour for any price?

Readings: Michael Sandel, 'Hired Help – Markets and Morals', in Justice: What's the Right Thing to Do? London, Penguin.

Tutorial 4: 28 March – 1 April: The debate between Lindblom and his critics: is muddling through the only option? Why should we not aspire to 'rational' policy making? Can we muddle through any better? How?

Readings: Charles Lindblom, "The Science of 'Muddling Through'", Ch. 9 in F. Kramer (ed.) Perspectives on Public Bureaucracy, Winthrop Publishers, 1973.

Tutorial 5: 18 – 22 April: MMP and the policy process in New Zealand: What difference, if any, has it made to the policy process and policy outcomes? Why has electoral reform remained controversial? What changes to the current electoral system, if any, would you recommend? What other constitutional changes might be desirable?

Readings: Shaw and Eichbaum, Ch. 8.

Nicola White, “Deconstructing Cabinet Collective Responsibility”, Policy Quarterly, 1, 4, 2005, pp. 4 – 11.

Jonathan Boston, Stephen Church and Tim Bale, “The Impact of Proportional Representation on Government Effectiveness: The New Zealand Experience”, Australian Journal of Public Administration, 62, 4, December 2003, pp. 7 – 22.

Tutorial 6: 25 – 29 April: Intervention logic: what is it and is it logical? In what ways is intervention logic helpful in understanding a policy problem? What are the potential risks and limitations? When is intervention logic most useful?

Readings: Karen Baehler, “Intervention Logic: A User’s Guide”, Public Sector, 25, 3, 2002, pp. 14 – 20.

Leon Bakker and Carolyn Adams, “Intervention Logic: The Department of Corrections Case Study”, Public Sector, 26, 1, 2003, pp. 19 – 21.

Robert Gregory, “Political Life and Intervention Logic: Relearning Old Lessons?” International Public Management Journal, 7, 3, 2004, pp. 299 – 315.

Claudia Scott and Karen Baehler Adding Value to Policy Analysis and Advice, Sydney, UNSW Press, 2010, pp.155-165.

Tutorial 7: 2 – 6 May: Welfare reform: Reducing Long-Term Benefit Dependency. Why has long-term dependency on welfare benefits (or social security) increased so much in NZ and in many other developed countries over the past few decades? Why does it matter? What solutions are available, and what are their advantages and disadvantages? Is this an example of a ‘wicked’ policy problem? What intervention logics to address long-term benefit dependency can you think of, and how sound are they?

Welfare Working Group, Final Report (February 2011) – see <http://ips.ac.nz/WelfareWorkingGroup/Index.html>

Tutorial 8: 9 – 13 May: Climate change: framing the policy problem and assessing the options. What is the problem definition? Is climate change a ‘wicked’ policy problem, if not a ‘super wicked’ problem? How should governments assess and respond to long-term risks? How can we ensure that policy makers give sufficient attention to long-term problems?

Readings: R. Garnaut, “A Decision-Making Framework”, Ch. 1 in The Garnaut Climate Change Review, Final Report, Canberra, 2008.

Nicholas Stern, “Executive Summary”, The Stern Review on the Economics of Climate Change, London, 2006, pp. i – xxvii.
http://www.hm-treasury.gov.uk/stern_review_report.htm

Tutorial 9: 16 – 20 May: Mitigating climate change: the relative merits of emissions taxes, emissions trading and other policy instruments. Why has an emissions trading scheme (ETS) been preferred over an emissions tax in most developed countries? Is this preference justified? What are the strengths and weaknesses of the NZ ETS?

Readings: Nicholas Stern, “Harnessing markets to reduce emissions” and “Carbon pricing and emission markets in practice”, Chs. 14 & 15 in The Stern Review on the Economics of Climate Change, London, 2006, pp. 309 – 346.
See: http://www.hm-treasury.gov.uk/stern_review_report.htm

Tutorial 10: 23 – 27 May: What is affirmative action (or preferential treatment)? Why is it so controversial? Is it ever justified, and if so, under what conditions?

Readings: Jonathan Boston, Paul Callister and Amanda Wolf, The Policy Implications of Diversity, Wellington, Institute of Policy Studies, 2006, Ch. 9.
William Bowen and Derek Bok, The Shape of the River: Long-Term Consequences of Considering Race in College and University Admissions, Princeton, Princeton University Press, 1998, Chs. 9 & 10.
Don Brash, “Nationhood”, Speech to the Orewa Rotary Club, 27 January 2004.

Tutorial 11: 30 May – 3 June: Concluding session – revision and summing up

NB: You are expected to attend at least 8 of 11 tutorials. If you fall behind on your reading for one week, don’t despair and don’t succumb to the ‘domino effect’ of getting further and further behind the more you try to catch up. Read the material for the upcoming class first, before trying to catch up on previous material. Don’t read for facts. Instead, focus on the main conceptual point or argument of each article, and think about how it informs your understanding of public policy.

Assessment Requirements

| ASSIGNMENT | DUE DATE | WEIGHT |
|---|------------------|---------------|
| 1st Essay (2,000 words) (all course objectives) | Tuesday 29 March | 25% |
| 2nd Essay (2,000 words) (all course objectives) | Monday 16 May | 25% |
| Final exam (all course objectives) | Check schedule | 50% |

Essays are due by 5.00pm on the date specified. They can be submitted to:

- The lecturer in class, or
- The secure box at School of Government reception (8th floor Rutherford House) during the office hours, which are 8.30am – 5.00pm. The assignment box is cleared daily, and assignments will be date stamped.

Students should keep a secure copy of all assignments (i.e. hard copy and e-file).

Essays must be typed, with the exact word count (excluding references) indicated on the cover sheet. They must include details of the topic, your name, tutor and tutorial group.

Essays should seek to make sustained, well-supported and cogent arguments. Do not present a series of disconnected observations about particular cases or particular stages of the policymaking cycle. Weave your ideas together.

Essays will be marked according to the depth of understanding of the topic, the cogency of the arguments being made and the degree to which they are supported by evidence, the aptness of examples, and the originality of insights, as well as the usual standards of correct spelling, punctuation, and grammar, appropriate formatting and overall tidiness. All ideas that have been borrowed from something you read (book, journal, magazine, newspaper or website) or a conversation with another person or a television show or a speech, etc. etc., should be referenced thoroughly and accurately. Sources should be listed at the end of the paper in a bibliography.

Note: Your assessed work may also be used for quality assurance purposes, such as to assess the level of achievement of learning objectives as required for accreditation and audit purposes. The findings may be used to inform changes aimed at improving the quality of FCA programmes. All material used for such processes will be treated as confidential, and the outcome will not affect your grade for the course.

FIRST ESSAY (Due 29 March)

Please answer one of the following questions:

1. Outline what is meant by ‘market failure’. With respect to at least one contemporary example of a significant market failure in New Zealand, outline and assess the policy options that are available for addressing this failure. Under which option is the prospect of ‘government failure’ minimized. OR
2. Paternalistic policies and the ‘nanny state’ have a bad press in New Zealand and many other liberal democracies. Yet some leading social scientists believe that there are robust paternalistic justifications for the state to limit human freedom under certain circumstances or at least nudge people to behave in ways that are likely to be in their best interests. Assess the arguments for and against policies based on paternalistic justifications and outline the circumstances, if any, under which ‘nudging’ (or light-handed regulation) is justified. OR

3. Outline the various ways in which ethical principles and considerations play a role in the analysis of policy issues and options. In determining how best to solve a policy problem, should the objective be to maximize welfare, minimize harm, pursue justice, some combination of all these or something else? OR
4. Explain the concept of a ‘merit good’, how it differs from a ‘public good’ and why it remains a controversial notion in policy circles. Do you think the concept of a merit good has much merit, and if so, how should it be applied in concrete policy situations?

SECOND ESSAY (Due 10 May)

Please answer one of the following questions:

1. You are a policy adviser to the Minister for the Environment. Your Minister has asked you to assess the relative merits of at least three policy options for reducing New Zealand’s greenhouse gas emissions. Outline the relevant criteria for assessment and apply these criteria to the policy options you have selected. Critically assess these options. Which policy option, or combination of options, would you recommend that New Zealand adopt? OR
2. You are a policy adviser in the Department of Prime Minister and Cabinet. The Prime Minister has received a letter claiming that the way New Zealand has designed its emissions trading scheme provides numerous lessons in precisely how NOT to design such a scheme. The Prime Minister has asked you to address the following matters: What are the claimed weaknesses in the NZ emissions trading scheme, what (if anything) can be done to rectify them, and what policy changes (if any) should be made? In answering this question, please outline the criteria you have employed to assess: a) the current policy framework, and b) the options for reform that you have considered.
3. You are an adviser to the Minister of Social Welfare. She is in the process of considering the final report of the Welfare Working Group (2011) on how to reduce long-term benefit dependency. She has asked you for advice on the merits of main recommendations in this report and whether there are other policy options that ought to be considered. Briefly outline the main recommendations in the report and assess their strengths and weaknesses against clearly identified criteria. What other policy options are available for reducing long-term benefit dependency and do they have any merit?
4. You are an adviser to the Minister of Education. Your Minister has received a report from a think tank arguing that vouchers represent the best way for the state to fund certain kinds of services, particularly education. Write a report to your Minister briefly explaining the nature of vouchers and the various forms that they can take. Why are vouchers preferred over other funding options by some policy analysts, and do you agree with their assessment? In answering this question, please ensure that you outline the criteria that, in your view, are relevant for assessing how the state might fund certain kinds of services (like education) and use these criteria to compare several policy options.

FINAL EXAM

Students who enrol in courses with examinations are obliged to attend an examination at the University at any time during the formal examination period

The registry-conducted, three-hour exam will cover the whole course. Students should consult the final examination timetable, available later in the term on the University website.

The final examination for this course will be scheduled at some time during the period from Friday 10 June to Saturday 2 July 2011.

Mandatory Course Requirements and Penalties

To fulfil the mandatory paper requirements for this paper you must:

- Attend eight of the scheduled tutorial sessions.
- Submit all written assignments by the due date. A late assignment will have its mark reduced by 3% for each day it is overdue unless there is a very good reason why it was late.

Assignments will not be accepted that are over a week late. Assignments significantly exceeding the word limit will have 5 marks deducted.

Students who fail to satisfy the mandatory requirements for passing this course, other than the requirement to obtain a C grade overall, will not receive a graded result, and their records will show a “K” (fail due to not satisfying mandatory course requirements, even though the student’s course requirements reached the level specified for a pass).

To pass PUBL 201 a student must meet the mandatory requirements and achieve at least a total of 50% over all the assessment.

Class Representative

A class representative will be elected in the first class, and that person’s name and contact details will be available to VUWSA, the course coordinator, and the class. The class representative provides a communication channel to liaise with the course coordinator on behalf of the students.

Communication of Additional Information

Notices, marks for assignments (by student ID number) and selected course materials will be posted on the Blackboard website. Only students who are registered for PUBL 201 will have access. If you have problems with Blackboard, please contact the ITS Help Desk on (04) 463 5050 or at its-service@vuw.ac.nz.

Academic Integrity, Plagiarism, and the use of Turnitin

Plagiarism is presenting someone else's work as if it were your own, whether you mean to or not.

'Someone else's work' means anything that is not your own idea. Even if it is presented in your own style, you must still acknowledge your sources fully and appropriately. This includes:

- material from books, journals or any other printed source
- the work of other students or staff
- information from the Internet
- software programs and other electronic material
- designs and ideas
- the organisation or structuring of any such material.

Acknowledgement is required for all material in any work submitted for assessment unless it is a 'fact' that is well-known in the context (such as "Wellington is the capital of New Zealand") or your own ideas in your own words. Everything else that derives from one of the sources above and ends up in your work – whether it is directly quoted, paraphrased, or put into a table or figure, needs to be acknowledged with a reference that is sufficient for your reader to locate the original source.

Plagiarism undermines academic integrity simply because it is a form of lying, stealing and mistreating others. Plagiarism involves stealing other people's intellectual property and lying about whose work it is. This is why plagiarism is prohibited at Victoria.

If you are found guilty of plagiarism, you may be penalised under the Statute on Student Conduct. You should be aware of your obligations under the Statute, which can be downloaded from the policy website (www.victoria.ac.nz/home/about/policy/students.aspx). You could fail your course or even be suspended from the University.

Plagiarism is easy to detect. The University has systems in place to identify it.

Student work provided for assessment in this course may be checked for academic integrity by the electronic search engine <http://www.turnitin.com>. Turnitin is an on-line plagiarism prevention tool which compares submitted work with a very large database of existing material. At the discretion of the Head of School, handwritten work may be copy-typed by the School and subject to checking by Turnitin. Turnitin will retain a copy of submitted materials on behalf of the University for detection of future plagiarism, but access to the full text of submissions will not be made available to any other party.

There is guidance available to students on how to avoid plagiarism by way of sound study skills and the proper and consistent use of a recognised referencing system. This guidance may be found at the following website <http://www.victoria.ac.nz/home/study/plagiarism.aspx>

If in doubt seek the advice of your course coordinator.

Plagiarism is simply not worth the risk.
