Course content

This course investigates the process of European integration as well as the creation of 'European' policies. It begins with an introduction to the institutions of the contemporary European Union and asks how they came into being after the Second World War and why they have developed in fits-and-starts to the present. After introducing the history and institutions of "Europe", the course examines the processes and debates that shape policy making in the contemporary European Union. It asks whether developments reached a crisis point in 2005 because integration has proceeded too far too fast. Has the multiplication of unresolved internal conflicts and institutional overload become too much for French, Dutch and Irish voters? Can these problems be resolved? Or, will integration become dis-integration?

Learning objectives

Students passing the paper should be able to do the following:

- Describe in detail the institutions of governance in the European Union
- Understand and evaluate different explanations for how the institutions of European governance came into being and have evolved over time
- Understand how the process of European integration—the creation of a common set of institutions and policies—drives and, sometimes, resolves political conflicts
- Understand the foundation on which contemporary debates about policy, democracy, institutions, and enlargement takes place in Europe.

Expected workload

In accordance with Faculty Guidelines, this course has been constructed on the assumption that students will devote approximately 200 hours to POLS/INTP351 during the semester. This includes: 24 hours in class (2 hours of lectures per week); approximately 60 hours reading course materials; 80 hours researching, writing (and rewriting!) essays and preparing for tests.

Assessment requirements

This course will be internally assessed on the following basis:

- 1) One 50-minute, in-class test = 20%. There will be a fifty-minute closed book test held on Tuesday, 11 August. It will take place during the first half of class. This test is designed to assess your understanding of the mechanics of European institutions. Without understanding how these institutions operate, you cannot understand EU policy, conflicts or behaviour in the world.
- 2) One 1-hour-and-fifty-minute, in-class test = 35%. This test will be closed-book and held on Tuesday, 13 October. This exercise will be cumulative and test students' understanding of explanations for the evolution of European institutions and the creation of policies.
- 3) One 2,000 word essay = 45% (total). This essay assignment has two parts:
  - 1-2 page Statement and Bibliography (= 15%): Submit a one-to-two page summary that: 1) states the question motivating your paper and why it is important (answers the “So what?” question), 2) offers a provisional answer to this question (your “Hypothesis” or “thesis”) and 3) outlines the evidence you will present to support your argument. You must also include a bibliography of sources (not included in the 1-2 page space limit). Statement and bibliography are due at the beginning of class Tuesday, 28 July. You do not need to submit this part of the assignment to Turnitin.com.
  - Final Essay (= 30%) due at the beginning of class Tuesday, 8 September (14.10). No Final Essay will be assessed unless a 1-2 page Statement has been submitted! The essay length is exclusive of bibliography.

Hard copies of 1-2 page Statements and Final Essays, not handed in at lectures, are to be posted to the Political Science and International Relations Essay Collection Box on the 5th floor of Murphy (across from the lifts). In addition to a hard copy, students are required to submit an electronic copy of the final draft to be processed by Turnitin.com (a plagiarism detection service).

Before you submit an electronic version of your final draft to Turnitin.com you must create a personal profile. Go to turnitin.com and follow the directions to create an account. The Class ID number for this course is 2743681. The password is Lisbon.

Penalties

Students will be penalised for late submission of essays – a deduction of 5% for the first day late, and 2% per day thereafter, up to a maximum of 8 days. Work that is more than 8 days late can be accepted for mandatory course requirements but will not be marked. However, penalties may be waived if there are valid grounds (for example, illness [presentation of a medical certificate will be necessary] or similar other contingencies). In all such cases, prior information will be necessary.

Mandatory course requirements

To gain a pass in this course each student must:

- a) Submit the written work specified for this course, on or by the specified dates (subject to such provisions as are stated for late submission of work).
- b) Submission of the final draft of your essay to Turnitin.com.

Statement on legibility

Students are expected to write clearly. Where work is deemed 'illegible', the options are:

- the student will be given a photocopy of the work and asked to transcribe it to an acceptable standard (preferably typed) within a specified time frame after which penalties will apply;
- the student will be given a photocopy of the work and asked to transcribe it to an acceptable standard (preferably typed) and lateness penalties apply;
- if the student does not transcribe it to an acceptable standard, the work will be accepted as 'received' (so any associated mandatory course requirements are met) but not marked.

The University defines plagiarism as presenting someone else's work as if it were your own, whether you mean to or not. 'Someone else's work' means anything that is not your own idea. Even if it is presented in your own style, you must acknowledge your sources fully and appropriately. This includes:

- Material from books, journals or any other printed source
- The work of other students or staff
- Information from the internet
- Software programs and other electronic material
- Designs and ideas
- The organisation or structuring of any such material

Turnitin is an online plagiarism prevention tool which compares submitted work with a very large database of existing material. At the discretion of the Head of School, handwritten work may be copy-typed by the School and subject to checking by Turnitin. Turnitin will retain a copy of submitted material on behalf of the University for detection of future plagiarism, but access to the full text of submissions is not made available to any other party.
