COMMUNICATION OF ADDITIONAL INFORMATION

Additional information or changes will be announced in class and/or posted on the course notice board at FT77, Level 3, and/or posted on Blackboard.

COURSE CONTENT

The course will offer selected topics in the theatre of Aotearoa New Zealand. A range of plays will be studied in relation to historical and contemporary theatre conventions, as well as from the point of view of a variety of critical approaches including colonial, nationalist, post-colonial, and feminist. Attention will be paid to Māori theatrical and paratheatrical forms, and to contemporary developments in syncretic and intercultural theatre.

All students should prepare for each class by reading the relevant play and any critical readings set for that session. Contribution to class discussions will not be formally assessed, but will be taken into account when the final grade is being considered.

Students are encouraged to make full use of the Robert Lord Library at 77 Fairlie Terrace. Please note that Library materials do not leave the building. The Green Room is also available to students in the Theatre Programme. You are expected to clean up after yourselves (this includes returning any mugs removed from the Green Room). If you wish to keep your own tea or coffee in the building, there is a locked cupboard for this purpose in the Green Room (see Administrator for a key). No food or beverages are allowed in the Library. A number of video tapes of New Zealand plays are held in the locked shelves in the Seminar Room; the key is available from the Administrator so that they may be viewed at any available VCR in the building. Tapes may not be taken out of the building.

LEARNING OBJECTIVES

Students passing the course should be able to ...

- investigate the development of drama and theatre in Aotearoa New Zealand in historical, cultural and performance contexts.
- explore recurrent themes in New Zealand drama and their relation to the construction of post-colonial identity.
- develop research skills and clear critical writing about the history of New Zealand drama and theatre.
- recognise and explore the influence of European (and other) dramatic styles on the development of New Zealand drama.
- recognise and explore the influence of Māori and Pacific Island performance modes on the development of New Zealand drama, and to explore the distinct development of Māori and Pacific theatre.
- investigate a variety of critical approaches to New Zealand drama.
- develop skills in close reading of New Zealand plays in a critical context.

EXPECTED WORKLOAD

The university anticipates that you should be able to devote at least 10 hours per week to a full-year course in a 4–paper graduate programme. Therefore you should probably expect to spend, on average, about 7 to 8 hours per week (apart from class time and screenings) in reading, preparation, thinking and essay writing. At Honours level it is expected that students will attend every seminar; if you are going to miss a seminar, please contact the course co-ordinator in advance if possible.

READINGS

All undergraduate textbooks and student notes will be sold from the Memorial Theatre foyer from 7 February to 11 March 2011, while postgraduate textbooks and student notes will be available from the top floor of vicbooks in the Student Union Building, Kelburn Campus. ACADEMIC INTEGRITY AND PLAGIARISM

Academic integrity means that university staff and students, in their teaching and learning are expected to treat others honestly, fairly and with respect at all times. It is not acceptable to mistreat academic, intellectual or creative work that has been done by other people by representing it as your own original work.

Academic integrity is important because it is the core value on which the University's learning, teaching and research activities are based. Victoria University's reputation for academic integrity adds value to your qualification.

The University defines plagiarism as presenting someone else's work as if it were your own, whether you mean to or not. 'Someone else's work' means anything that is not your own idea. Even if it is presented in your own style, you must acknowledge your sources fully and appropriately. This includes:

- Material from books, journals or any other printed source
- The work of other students or staff
- Information from the internet
- Software programs and other electronic material
- Designs and ideas
- The organisation or structuring of any such material
