COURSE PRESCRIPTION

This course will focus on fundamental questions associated with contemporary New Zealand politics, the country's political culture, its leadership, and changes that followed since the advent of MMP. This course also offers students opportunities for empirical research and exposure to the parliamentary setting.

COURSE CONTENT AND OBJECTIVES:

This course will focus on fundamental questions associated with New Zealand politics, both before and after the introduction of MMP. The initial focus will be on providing a history of political change in New Zealand before turning to the politics that led to the advent of the new electoral system. A major aspect of this will be to look at the political and policy stasis under Sir Robert Muldoon, the Fourth Labour Government's 'revolution,' led by David Lange and Sir Roger Douglas, before analyzing the Bolger Government, Ruthanasia, and the led up to electoral reform. The attention will then focus on domestic politics post-MMP. This will also incorporate an in-depth look at the 2002, 2005 and 2008 elections and the evolving political landscape since our last election. A particular focus of the course will be to look at New Zealand's political culture and to examine what changes have occurred since the electoral system change. Prime Ministerial leadership will also be canvassed during the course and unresolved issues and policy dilemmas in New Zealand politics will be a focus of the latter part of this course.

EXPECTED WORKLOAD

In accordance with the Faculty of Humanities and Social Science guidelines, the overall workload for this course is 200 hours.

ASSESSMENT: One research proposal (10%)
One research paper (50%);
One 3-hour examination (40%)

RESEARCH PROPOSAL: To be submitted on 16 August 2011.

RESEARCH PAPER: Between 3,500-5,000 words; should be submitted no later than 5.00pm on: 23 September 2011.

Assessment aims – This course aims to test the ability of students to think critically about issues associated with any aspect of New Zealand politics of the student's choice and to construct a structured, coherent and logical, well-written research paper. The end-of-year examination will assess students' overall grasp of the course content. The research paper challenges the capacity of students to design and complete independent research on a topic of their choosing within the field of New Zealand politics and to present a significant piece of written work.

Research Proposal – The research proposal will allow students the opportunity of introducing their preferred research topic, along with the methods of analysis, purpose of study, etc. A template of a model research proposal will be provided to guide students.

Research Paper – Given the reasonably specific nature of the course material, the research paper affords students the opportunity to carry out some original research of their own on topics associated with New Zealand politics. Naturally, the topic must involve some aspect of NZ politics, and is subject to approval by the course coordinator. Students are welcome to include elements of comparison with the experience of other countries, as well as within New Zealand. Those having difficulty selecting a topic should make an appointment to discuss the research project with the lecturer as soon as possible.

A written research proposal outlining the research topic should be submitted to the lecturer by 16 August 2011. The proposal (no more than two pages) should state the topic to be studied, and seek to frame it in the form of a research question(s) or hypotheses. The proposal should also indicate the significance of the research topic, the intended methodology, and include a preliminary bibliography.

The research paper itself should be between 3,500-5,000 words in length. Papers are to be submitted no later than 5.00pm on 23 September 2011. Assessment of research papers reflects the extent to which they are carefully presented, well written, well-researched, well-argued, original, creative, and insightful.

The final examination will be scheduled in the examination period 21 October-12 November 2011. The 3-hour examination will be essay-based; that is, students will have to write three essays, drawn from a wide choice of essays questions that are related to the course content – i.e., the various theoretical frameworks and specific cases discussed during the lecture programme.

STATEMENT ON PENALTIES:

Students will be penalised for late submission of essays—a deduction of 5% for the first day late, and 2% per day thereafter, up to a maximum of 8 days. Work that is more than 8 days late can be accepted for mandatory course requirements but will not be marked. However, penalties may be waived if there are valid grounds, e.g., illness (presentation of a medical certificate will be necessary) or similar other contingencies. In such cases prior information will be necessary.

CLASS REPRESENTATIVE

A class representative will be elected in the first week and that person's name and contact details will be made available to VUWSA, the Course Coordinator and the class. The class representative provides a communication channel to liaise with the Course Coordinator on behalf of students.

MANDATORY COURSE REQUIREMENTS:

The mandatory course requirements for POLS 353 are (i) completing and submitting the research proposal and research paper for the course and, (ii) mandatory attendance and gaining at least 40% in the final examination.

ACADEMIC INTEGRITY & PLAGIARISM

Academic integrity means that university staff and students, in their teaching and learning are expected to treat others honestly, fairly and with respect at all times. It is not acceptable to mistreat academic, intellectual or creative work that has been done by other people by representing it as your own original work.

Academic integrity is important because it is the core value on which the University's learning, teaching and research activities are based. Victoria University's reputation for academic integrity adds value to your qualification.

The University defines plagiarism as presenting someone else's work as if it were your own, whether you mean to or not. 'Someone else's work' means anything that is not your own idea. Even if it is presented in your own style, you must acknowledge your sources fully and appropriately. This includes:

- Material from books, journals or any other printed source
- The work of other students or staff
- Information from the internet
- Software programs and other electronic material
- Designs and ideas
- The organisation or structuring of any such material

Find out more about plagiarism, how to avoid it and penalties, on the University's website: <http://www.victoria.ac.nz/home/study/plagiarism.aspx>

WHERE TO FIND MORE DETAILED INFORMATION

Find key dates, explanations of grades and other useful information at www.victoria.ac.nz/home/study. Find out how academic progress is monitored and how enrolment can be restricted at www.victoria.ac.nz/home/study/academic-progress. COURSE OUTLINE & READING LIST

SECTION ONE – SETTING THE SCENE

1. INTRODUCTION (12 July)

This session will introduce students to New Zealand Politics under MMP. The course outline will be discussed, along with the requirements for the research paper.

No required readings.

2. WHERE NEW ZEALAND HAS COME FROM: FORTUNA & THE FLOOD (19, 26 July, 2, 9 August)

Recommended Readings:

Jonathon Boston and Martin Holland. (Eds.). 1990. The Fourth Labour Government: Politics And Policy in New Zealand. (2nd ed.). Auckland: Oxford University Press, pp. 198-213, pp. 263-271.

Robert Chapman. 1999. New Zealand Politics and Social Patterns: Selected Works by Robert Chapman – edited and introduced by Elizabeth McLeay. Wellington: VUW Press, pp. 337-365.

Margaret Clark. (ed). 1999. The Roberts Report. Wellington: VUW Press, pp. 71-76.

Simon Collins. 1987. Rogernomics: Is There A Better Way? Wellington: Pitman, pp. 2-36.

Colin James. 1986. The Quiet Revolution: Turbulence and Transition in Contemporary New Zealand. Wellington: Port Nicholson Press, pp. 79-110, pp. 133-162.

Colin James. 1992. New Territory: The Transformation of New Zealand 1984-92. Wellington: Bridget Williams Books, pp. 141-171.

Colin James, and Alan McRobie. 1993. Turning Point: 1993 Election and Beyond. Wellington: Bridget Williams Books, pp. 32-63.

Bruce Jesson. 1987. Behind The Mirror Glass: The growth of wealth and power in New Zealand in the eighties. Auckland: Penguin Books, pp. 116-134.

Jon Johansson. 'Muldoon Explanations: The Crucible of Character,' in Margaret Clark. (Ed.). 2004. Muldoon: Post-His Way. Palmerston North: Dunmore Press.

Leslie Lipson. 'The Politics of Equality.' Introduced by Jon Johansson. 2011. Wellington: VUW.

Margaret Wilson. 1989. Labour in Government: 1984-87. Wellington: Allen & Unwin, pp. 55-67.

This block of lectures will begin with a discussion of three earlier periods of big change in the direction of New Zealand politics, then look at New Zealand politics from 1975, when Rob Muldoon and National won power, up until the first MMP election in 1996. The politics and major policies of the Muldoon era will be traversed, leading up to the dramatic snap election of 1984 and the resulting election of David Lange and the Fourth Labour Government. We will then examine the transformation of the New Zealand economy and politics under the direction of Roger Douglas. The flood of neo-liberal reforms between 1984 and 1992 will be the main focus of this section, incorporating the massive National election victory in 1990 and the further reforms undertaken by Ruth Richardson. Finally, the 1993 referendum and resulting first MMP election in 1996 and Labour's victory in 1999 will complete this phase of the course.

3. WHERE NEW ZEALAND IS NOW: THE CLARK YEARS & THE 2008 ELECTION (16 August)

Recommended Reading:

Jon Johansson. 2009. 'The Politics of Possibility: Leadership in Changing Times'. Wellington: Dunmore.

Beginning briefly with an overview of National's third term in office and Helen Clark's victory in 1999, this lecture will focus on the Labour-led government's first term before examining in depth the 2002 and 2005 election campaigns and the overall results, including the splintering of the right in 2002, The Orewa speech delivered in 2004 and National's strong comeback in 2005 as well as discussed Clark's leadership and then conclude with a discussion on the 2008 election.

MID-TERM BREAK (22 August to 4 September)

4. PRIME MINISTERIAL LEADERSHIP (6 September)

Recommended Readings:

John Henderson. 'The Prime Minister,' in Raymond Miller. (ed.). 1997. New Zealand Politics in Transition. Auckland: Oxford University Press, pp. 72-80.

Jon Johansson. 2004. (Editor). Special Edition of Political Science Journal on Political Leadership. Vol. 56. No 2. Wellington: VU.

Elizabeth McLeay. 1995. The Cabinet & Political Power. Auckland: Oxford University Press, pp. 7-33.

Neale McMillan. 1993. Top Of The Greasy Pole: New Zealand Prime Ministers of Recent Times. Dunedin: McIndoe, pp. 31-52.

Stanley Renshon. 1996. The Psychological Assessment of Presidential Candidates. New York: New York University Press, pp. 184-194.

Patrick Weller. 1985. First Among Equals: Prime Ministers in Westminster Systems. Sydney: George Allen & Unwin.

This lecture will focus on the quality of leadership that spanned the period under study. Theories of leadership will be canvassed and then each New Zealand Prime Minister will be discussed in terms of various leadership theories. Importantly, the contribution of individual Prime Ministers (and their Cabinets) will be contrasted against the wider forces of global changes that impacted on New Zealand politics during the period under study.

5. POLITICAL CULTURE: STRANDS OLD & NEW (13 September)

Recommended Readings:

Jonathan Boston, Stephen Levine, Elizabeth McLeay & Nigel S. Roberts. (eds.). 1996. New Zealand Under MMP: A New Politics? Auckland: AUP, pp.1-14.

Robert Chapman. 1999. New Zealand Politics and Social Patterns: Selected Works by Robert Chapman – edited and introduced by Elizabeth McLeay. Wellington: VUW Press, pp. 320-336.

Margaret Clark. (ed). 1999. The Roberts Report. Wellington: VUW Press, pp. 65-70.

Margaret Clark. 1997. Future New Zealand: Our Country: Our Choices. Edited by Malcolm Menzies, Heather Newell, and Roger Peren. Wellington: New Zealand Future Trust.

Leslie Lipson. 1948. The Politics of Equality: New Zealand's Adventures in Democracy. Chicago: University of Chicago Press, pp. 481-503.

Paul Perry and Alan Webster. 1999. New Zealand Politics At The Turn Of The Millennium: Attitudes and Values About Politics and Government. Auckland: Alpha, pp. 15-48.

Andre Siegfried. 1982. Democracy In New Zealand. Introduction and Notes by David Hamer. Wellington: VUW Press, pp. 45-62, pp. 216-228, pp. 270-279.

This lecture will examine the dominant strands of New Zealand's political culture. Classical writers on political culture – such as Siegfried, Beaglehole & Leslie Lipson – will be contrasted against contemporary views on the nation's political culture. The focus of this lecture is to discuss those dominant and emerging strands of the political culture that mediate and influence the direction of politics of New Zealand.

6. DEVELOPMENT OF MULTI-PARTY POLITICS

(20 September)

Recommended Reading:

Jonathan Boston, Stephen Levine, Elizabeth McLeay & Nigel S. Roberts. (eds.). 1996. New Zealand Under MMP: A New Politics? Auckland: AUP, pp.15-26, 43-66, 175-193.

In this session the evolution of the party system in New Zealand will be discussed, with a particular focus on the development of the multi-party system that has emerged since the MMP referendum. We will also look at possible future changes in the party-system, with a particular focus on the problems faced by parties of the centre-right after the fragmentation that occurred in 2002.

7. WHERE NEW ZEALAND IS HEADED: UNRESOLVED DILEMMAS & CHALLENGES – PARTISANSHIP vs. BIPARTISANSHIP (27 September)

This lecture will focus on several perennial policy areas – Treaty and race policy, defence & foreign policies, the environment, and republicanism – where political advantage to parties of the left or right (and points in between) have undermined a bi-partisan approach to resolving these dilemmas. The point of this lecture is to allow a discussion on whether a small nation like New Zealand can afford the luxury of such partisanship or whether this is a natural and necessary corollary of our party politics.

8. PROGRESS & PROSPECTS FOR THE FUTURE (4 October)

This lecture will focus entirely on the future. What are the challenges facing New Zealand in the short and medium term future? Pervasive global trends will be discussed and the ability of New Zealand to move into the future will provide a major focus of this session.

9. FINAL LECTURE (11 October)

I will provide a recap on the major themes of this course and also offer some general comments about the exam and the areas that exam questions will broadly cover.
