SCHOOL LOCATION

COURSE PRESCRIPTION

The term social organisation is one way to summarise what Sociology is about: people doing things together in an organised fashion. This course examines theories of social organisation, contrasting them with the theoretical movement known as social constructionism. The course also considers empirical research, topics covered including discourse and communication; space and materiality; embodiment; emotions and other social forces; and new forms of social movement.

COURSE CONTENT

Any group of persons – prisoners, primitives, pilots, or patients – develop a life of their own that becomes meaningful, reasonable and normal once you get close to it. Erving Goffman, Asylums (1962).

Basically what I have to sell is the sorts of work I can do. I don't have to sell its theoretical underpinnings, its hopes for the future, its methodological elegance, its theoretical scope, or anything else. I have to sell what I can do, and the interestingness of my findings. Harvey Sacks, in Lerner (2004).

Eternity is a long time, especially towards the end. Woody Allen

The type of questions that this course considers include: Could sociology be closer to the social worlds we are surrounded by, hence more sensible to everyday people? Can we make sociology less obscure, more understandable, but at the same time rigorously analytical?

LEARNING OBJECTIVES

By the end of the course students should be able to:

- Understand 'social organisation' as a term that indicates sociology's subject matter (all assignment work)
- Understand the manner in which social organisation can be investigated (assignment 2, 3, analytical sessions)
- Think critically about sociological arguments (all assignment work)

TUTORIAL PROGRAMME

There are two specified tutorials for this course run on the dates indicated on the lecture programme. They revolve around readings contained in the Student notes. The tutorials require students to prepare by reading selected material from the book of readings (these will be notified ahead of time in lectures and Blackboard announcements). Tutorials are not compulsory. There is little point in turning up to the tutorials unless you have read and thought about the required reading. Tutorials after the midterm break turn into analytical sessions (see below).

ANALYTICAL SESSIONS

Four class sessions in the course are devoted to 'analytical sessions'. This equates to something like a hands-on tutorial about how to begin sociological analysis. We will be looking at some social data, introduced by a preparation lecture on 'violence and humour', and engaging in discussion and practical activity about how best to develop sociological analysis of such material. There is no guarantee of success in this endeavour, but students should at least learn about the practicalities of developing their sociological thinking in reference to empirical material.

BLACKBOARD/COMMUNICATION OF ADDITIONAL INFORMATION

The BlackBoard resource will be used for basic communication between the course coordinator and the class. It will also be used for posting summary lecture notes, often a copy of the power point slides used during lectures. Other additional information related to SOSC 305 will be communicated via BlackBoard.

MANDATORY COURSE REQUIREMENTS

To meet mandatory course requirement for this course you must:

- ✓ Sit the in-class test and
- ✓ Submit both assignments.

EXPECTED WORKLOAD

University guidelines stipulate that a 20-point course requires approximately 13 hours per week of student work (this includes class time).

ASSESSMENT

Assessment is internal and involves three pieces of work. The first is an in-class test, the second is a critical discussion essay, and for the third students can choose between a written essay or a seminar presentation.

In-Class Test

Weighting: 30%

Due: during class time, Thursday August 23

The test is based on the material covered in the first 11 class sessions. A guidance statement on the test will be given at least two weeks before the date of the test.

Essay (Critical discussion piece)

Weighting: 35%

Due: 4pm, Friday September 21

Suggested length: 2500 words

Choose an article from a recent sociology journal (ie. from 2000 onwards). The article should be a report on research, ie. avoid purely theoretical discussions. Using your understanding of 'social organisation', read the article in detail and then work up a critical discussion.

Class time will be used to clarify ways of approaching this assignment, specifically the 'critical evaluation' lecture on April 12.

Essay or Seminar Presentation

Weighting: 35%

Essay due: 4pm, Friday 19 October

Seminar due: during class time, date TBC

Either a 2500 word essay or a seminar presentation on a topic of your own choice.

Points to note:

- you may pursue any relevant topic that interests you, but you should check with the course coordinator before proceeding beyond the initial stages; early notification of intention to take the seminar option would be appreciated.
- a good way to work up a topic is to make use of material in the course book of readings, or to extend your work from assignment 1.
- There is a planning session on October 1 for those taking the seminar option. This will provide fuller details on how to present a seminar. The basic framework is 20 minutes for speaking and 5 to 10 minutes for discussion. All that needs to be handed in are the notes used for the presentation.

LATE ESSAYS

It is important to note that late work will normally be accepted only in the case of illness or other unavoidable emergencies. In such cases a medical certificate or equivalent is required. In special circumstances a student may make a prior arrangement for an extension.

PENALTIES FOR LATE SUBMISSION

Late submissions of assignments in all Sociology undergraduate courses are subject to a penalty. The exact deduction will be calculated on the basis of one half mark per day late for each 10 marks, i.e.

Mark out of maximum of	Then deduct the following marks for each day it is late
10	$\frac{1}{2}$
30	1 $\frac{1}{2}$
40	2

Where the due date is a Friday, any written work not handed in by 4.00 p.m. will be liable to a two day penalty.

ACADEMIC INTEGRITY AND PLAGIARISM

Academic integrity means that university staff and students, in their teaching and learning are expected to treat others honestly, fairly and with respect at all times. It is not acceptable to mistreat academic, intellectual or creative work that has been done by other people by representing it as your own original work.

Academic integrity is important because it is the core value on which the University's learning, teaching and research activities are based. Victoria University's reputation for academic integrity adds value to your qualification.

The University defines plagiarism as presenting someone else's work as if it were your own, whether you mean to or not. 'Someone else's work' means anything that is not your own idea. Even if it is presented in your own style, you must acknowledge your sources fully and appropriately. This includes:

- Material from books, journals or any other printed source
- The work of other students or staff
- Information from the internet
- Software programs and other electronic material
- Designs and ideas
- The organisation or structuring of any such material

Find out more about plagiarism, how to avoid it and penalties, on the University's website: <http://www.victoria.ac.nz/home/study/plagiarism.aspx>

CLASS REPRESENTATIVE

A class representative will be recruited in consultation with the class at the beginning of the course. The class representative's name and contact details will be available to the Victoria University of Wellington Students' Association (VUWSA), the course coordinator and the class (on BlackBoard). The class representative provides a communication channel to liaise with the course coordinator on behalf of students.
