Prescription

This course introduces students to major sociological theories. Emphasis is on understanding theoretical ideas and how they relate to the construction and analysis of social issues.

Course content

SOSC 211 examines the major shifts in social theory from the classical period to today. Beginning with the origins of social theory and the foundational analyses of Marx, Weber, and Durkheim, the course then moves to cover a range of major sociological theories – structural functionalism, symbolic interaction, Marxism, post-structuralism, actor-network theory, globalisation theory, and more. The course also aims to encourage students to understand these theories in their context and against one another, and to move towards critical evaluation of the major currents of sociological thought in their assessment work. An outline of lectures, along with recommended readings is available on Blackboard.

Course learning objectives (CLOs)

Students who pass this course should be able to

- display their grasp of a number of the major sociological approaches to the study of the social world, and to show that they can begin thinking about applying these to analysis of substantive issues in contemporary society
- 2. draw together and consolidate their knowledge of the substantive content of the course.

Teaching format

Teaching consists of one two-hour lecture per week, as well as tutorials. Tutorials will begin in the third week of trimester. These tutorials are compulsory, and students need to attend at least 6 out of 9 as part of mandatory course requirements. More information will be given in lectures about tutorial times and rooms.

Mandatory course requirements

In addition to achieving an overall pass mark of 50%, students must:

- 1. submit essay one and essay two
- 2. sit the exam
- 3. attend at least 6 out of 9 tutorials.

Workload

The expectations are that students will work 10 hours per point, therefore a 20-point course equates to 200 hours over the trimester. This includes scheduled contact time, individual or group study, and work on assessment tasks.

The approximate workload for study towards essays and the exam is 40 hours each.

Submission and return of work

Every effort will be made to return marked assignments within two-weeks of the due date. Marked assignments not collected in lectures or tutorials can be collected at the Murphy 9th floor reception desk, between 2.00 and 4.00 pm only from Monday to Friday.

Extensions and penalties

Extensions

Assignments are due on the dates stated. If for some serious reason you don't think you can get an essay in on time, see your supervisor prior to the due date and discuss the problem. Extensions of time are not permitted except for illness, or bereavements.

Penalties

Late submissions for student assignments in all Sociology and Social Policy undergraduate courses are subject to a penalty. The exact deduction will be calculated on the basis of one half mark per day late for each 10 marks, i.e. 1 mark will be deducted each day for an assignment worth 20% of the total course mark.

Note: assessment work will not be accepted for marking more than 7 days after the due date or 7 days after an approved extension date. Work must still, however, be submitted to meet the mandatory course requirements.
