Prescription

This course will offer a general introduction to the anthropology of ritual. It will consider the variety of ways that ritual has been studied and analysed anthropologically with a particular focus on the role and significance of ritual in modern societies. Examples will be drawn from New Zealand and a wide range of contemporary cultures.

Course learning objectives (CLOs)

Students who pass this course will be able to:

1. Understand how rituals are structured and analysed by Anthropologists; and how rituals are involved in making/constructing meaning.
2. Contextualise, describe and analyse rituals in your own, related and different cultures.
3. Undertake basic non-participant observation, take field notes, code field notes, and write up a field report.

Teaching format

This course involves two one hour lectures a week and nine one hour tutorial sessions. This course combines lectures with interactive tutorials in a format designed to guide students through the major topic areas and encourage discussion. The emphasis is on collaborative learning through dialogue and active participation.

Tutorial participation is a significant component of this course. Tutorials will not be a summary of readings or reviews of the lectures, but discussions and activities intended to help you learn to use the concepts presented to analyse both ethnographic materials and your own experience; develop skills in analysing and synthesising data and concepts from various sources; and improve your critical reading and your ability to put your ideas into words.

To gain full value from the course you should attend all lectures and tutorials.

Mandatory course requirements

Students must attend a minimum of 7 of the 9 tutorials so that they will have the opportunity to develop oral communication skills through collaborative learning as well as critical reading and analysis skills.

If you miss more than two tutorials without an adequate reason (health/family circumstances etc.) you will not have met course requirements and therefore fail the course.

Any student who is concerned that they have been (or might be) unable to meet any of the mandatory course requirements because of exceptional personal circumstances should contact the course coordinator as soon as possible.

Workload

You should spend a minimum of 13 hours per week working on ANTH 213 (based on an overall workload of 200 hours for the course). This includes attending class, reading and taking notes, working on assignments and preparing for the final test.

Assessment

ANTH 213 will be assessed as follows:

Assessment item	Due Date	CLOs	%
1 Non-participant observation report (2000 words)	Fri 14 August, 4pm	1, 2, 3	30%

3 In-class test	Fri 16 October	1, 2	30%

Report (2000 words; 30% of final grade)

Essay (2000-2500 words; 40% of final grade)

This essay is based on public ritual and performance and combines participant observation with theory and literature, using anthropological ideas from the course.

In-class Test (30% of final grade)

This test will be held on Friday, 16 October from 2.10-3.00pm (during lecture time) and requires an analysis of a modern ritual, drawing on course material, specified lectures and possibly a film clip.

Detailed instructions on each assignment will be given separately.
