Additional information and any changes to the timetable or lecture and seminar programme will be advised by email, announced in lectures, and posted on the course Blackboard site.

Prescription

This course offers an overview of major political ideologies, concepts and debates. It is intended to provide students with a solid base in the political ideas that have a prominent place in a variety of POLS and INTP courses. Topics covered range from justice and equality to the morality of war.

Course content

Weeks 1 and 2: The State and Power

Weeks 3 and 4: Democracy and Freedom

Weeks 5 and 6: Justice and Equality

Weeks 7 and 8: War and Morality

Weeks 9 and 10: Nationalism, Patriotism and Cosmopolitanism

Weeks 11 and 12: Multiculturalism and Feminism

Course learning objectives (CLOs)

Students passing the course should be able to:

1. define major political concepts such as authority, power, freedom, etc.
2. understand the contours of ideologies that are prevalent in today's political landscape such as liberalism, egalitarianism, multiculturalism and nationalism
3. discuss important political issues from different ideological perspectives
4. critically assess different ideological perspectives
5. develop cohesive and informed arguments in response to political questions.

Teaching format

This course is taught by means of three weekly lectures of one hour each, one weekly tutorial of one hour, and an online component (primarily on the course website on Blackboard).

Students are expected to come to all lectures having done the required readings. The lectures supplement and clarify the ideas and readings discussed in the course, providing context and explaining difficult points. The lectures may include interactive exercises, and reasonable participation is expected.

Tutorials are an essential component of the learning experience in this course. They are an occasion for students to raise questions and debate issues. To this end, the course fosters a learning environment of mutual respect. The ideas presented in this course range across the entire political spectrum and touch upon virtually every aspect of our political, social, and personal lives. Inevitably, students will be challenged or unsettled by some of the material. Such discomfort is a normal phase of the learning process. Students are expected to reflect critically upon all the ideas addressed in the lectures, tutorials, and readings. Criticism and argument should always be directed at the ideas, not at the person articulating them. Needless to say, students are encouraged to assess, develop, and defend their own ideas rigorously.

The online component of the course consists of fortnightly participation in a course discussion board. This ensures that the student will be generally engaged with the material covered in class and able to relate it to current events.

Mandatory course requirements

In addition to achieving an overall pass mark of 50%, students must:

1. submit the essays on or by the specified dates (subject to such provisions as are stated for late submission of work)
2. sit the final examination
3. attend at least 6 tutorials

Any student who is concerned that they have been (or might be) unable to meet any of the MCRs because of exceptional personal circumstances, should contact the course coordinator as soon as possible.

Workload

The suggested workload outlined below assumes an average native English-speaking student. Some students will take longer while others will take less time (in terms of absolute number of hours) when completing different activities.

Per week (average)

Lecture attendance: 3 hours

Tutorial attendance: 1 hour

Completing required reading: 4 hours

Completing assignments/studying for the examination: 8.6 hours (note: amount of time spent on assignments/studying will vary from week to week)

Total: 16.6 hours

Per activity (total)

Lecture attendance: 36 hours

Tutorial attendance: 11 hours

Completing required reading: 48 hours

Completing the search strategies report: 2 hours

Completing the discussion board posts: 3 hours

Completing the two essays: 60 hours

Study for the examination: 37 hours

Sitting the examination: 3 hours

Total: 200 hours

Assessment

Assessment items and workload per item	%	CLO(s)	Due date
1 A search strategies report (one page)	2	4-5	Week 3 (July 27-July 31)
2 Fortnightly discussion board posts	8	2-5	Ongoing- see No. 2 below
3 Two 1500 word essays (each worth 25%)	50	2-5	1 st essay: 21 August by 3 p.m. 2 nd essay: 16 October by 3 p.m.
4 Final three hour examination	40	1-4	23 October to 14 November

1. Search Strategies Report. Each student must do the Search Strategies self-paced tutorial which will be distributed via Blackboard. At their tutorials in week 3 of the course (the week beginning 27 July) students must hand in a Search Strategies Report. This is a one page summary of the electronic search tools and search paths used to obtain three references (one internet based; one from the library's online resources; and one from the library catalogue) relevant to their first essay. The Search Strategies self-paced tutorial will provide examples of and information about how to conduct such searches. The reports ought to detail for each of the three results what phrases were searched for, how search results were narrowed or filtered, and what database was selected. Each of the three brief search histories must end in the full citation of the final reference. Reports must be handed in at your tutorial in Week 3.

2. Fortnightly discussion board posts. Like any discussion board, the course discussion board is fairly informal. Not every posting needs to raise a question, though you may wish to raise questions about class content; and your contributions can be in comments to other people's postings. You can, for example:

- Raise questions about issues that are unclear from the class;
- Comment on, and link to, articles relevant to the discussions in the class;
- Raise issues that you think ought to be discussed in class;
- Discuss possible answers to various questions raised by the instructors;
- Discuss possible answers to various questions raised by other students;
- Summarize parts of the readings, and raise questions about them.

You are expected to post to the discussion board at least once every fortnight (though more is not necessarily better). The deadline for all posts is 5 pm on the last Friday of the two-week period, though you are encouraged to post before the deadline so you can actually participate in discussions; no late posts will be counted. Your contributions will be assessed on a fortnightly basis, according to the following scheme:

- 0 points. No contribution to the discussion board, or very poor quality contribution.
- 0.5 points. Minimal contribution (e.g., minimal comment on another person's post in the discussion board, discussion board posts that do not show that you have done the reading or that are not sufficiently on topic)
- 1 point. Regular contributions (e.g., contributing study questions, answers to study questions, and other substantial contributions to the discussion board, raising or answering interesting questions in the discussion board, posts showing that you have done the reading for the week, etc.)
- 2 points. Exceptional contributions (e.g., excellent study questions or answers, outstanding participation in the discussion board, posts making an unusually perceptive point about one of the readings for the week, etc.)

You need to accumulate 8 points over the course of the trimester to obtain your full 8% mark for this assessment component. On average, therefore, you need to be accumulating a bit more than 1 point per fortnight (there are six opportunities for participation during the term), though you may miss a week occasionally. You will be given credit for all contributions you make; so, for example, if you end the term with 6 points, this will translate into 6% of your final grade.

The instructors will occasionally contribute to the discussion board, but the main responsibility is on the students to make it a useful learning resource. The instructors will also use the issues raised in the discussion board for tutorial discussions or address them in lecture.

3. Essays. The essays gauge your ability to craft a persuasive argument about a political issue and take into account different ideological perspectives. For both essays, you will be given a range of questions from which you can choose. Your first essay is due on Friday 21 August by 3 p.m., and should be submitted via Blackboard. Your second essay is due on Friday October 16 by 3 p.m. and should also be submitted via Blackboard. Students are advised to consult the Programme's Essay Writing Guide for advice on composing and referencing their essay. A rubric which outlines the characteristics of essays of varying qualities will be posted to Blackboard.

4. Final examination. The final examination will be closed book, comprehensive and will test your mastery of the key ideas and concepts from the course. The examination will consist of a mixture of short answer and essay questions; more details will be available closer to the examination time.

Submission and return of work

Assessments should be submitted via the following methods:

- A hard copy of your search strategies report should be turned in at your tutorial session in week three.
- Discussion board posts should be submitted via Blackboard.
- Essays must be submitted electronically via Blackboard by 3 p.m. on the due dates: Friday 21 August and Friday 16 October.

Essays will be returned electronically with comments via Blackboard.

Extensions and penalties

Extensions

Late submission of assignments will not be accepted unless the student makes an appointment as soon as practically possible with the course coordinator to explain the lateness (preferably before the assignment is due to be submitted). The circumstances under which an extension will be considered are outlined in section 3.2.1 of the Assessment Handbook.

(See: www.victoria.ac.nz/documents/policy/staff-policy/assessment-handbook.pdf).

Penalties

Students will be penalised for late submission of assignments – a deduction of 5% for the first day late, and 2% per day thereafter, up to a maximum of 8 days. Work that is more than 10 weekdays late can be accepted for mandatory course requirements but may not be marked. Penalties may be waived if there are valid grounds (for example, illness [presentation of a medical certificate will be necessary] or similar other contingencies). In all such cases, prior information will be necessary. Extensions on deadlines for written work will only be granted under exceptional circumstances.

Set texts

Most required readings are contained in the POLS 112 course reader (student notes). Other required readings can be found in the following set text:

- Heywood, Andrew. 2012. Political Ideologies: An Introduction (New York: Palgrave Macmillan).

Both are available for purchase at Vicbooks. Please see their website www.vicbooks.co.nz

Recommended reading

Recommended reading for this course will be listed in a document posted to Blackboard.

Class representative

The class representative provides a useful way to communicate feedback to the teaching staff during the course. A class representative will be selected at the first lecture of the course. Students may like to write the Class Rep's name and details in this box:

Class Rep name and contact details:

Student feedback

The structure of the course and assessments assigned reflect student feedback and changes in course delivery made in response to student feedback will be noted during the course.

Student feedback on University courses may be found at www.cad.vuw.ac.nz/feedback/feedback_display.php.
