

Learning from the land: Indigenous legal education in context

NEW ZEALAND CENTRE FOR

Learning outside the classroom, on and from the land, should be integral to understanding our legal world. In this public lecture, Professor John Borrows, an internationally respected indigenous legal scholar, talks about his experiences teaching outside the traditional law school classroom. Such experiences give students deeper understandings of the way law works, especially in the context of indigenous peoples. He explores how law lives 'on the ground' and is present beyond declarations of parliament and the courts.

Professor John Borrows, BA MA JD LL.M. Toronto, PhD York(Can), FRSC

Professor Borrows is Canada Research Chair in Indigenous Law at the University of Victoria Law School, British Columbia. He teaches in the areas of constitutional, environmental and indigenous law. He is Anishinabe/Ojibway and a member of the Chippewa of the Nawash First Nation in Ontario, Canada.
